Members of the local committee on arrangements estimated today that between 1,200 and 1,500 of the plummed and uniformed Knights would attend the annual rites in the National cemetery here on that day if weather conditions are favorable. Arrangements will be made to hold the service in some local auditorium in event of bad weather.

The principal address will be made by Sir Knight James A. Walker, Philadelphia Commandery, No. 2, acting grand prelate. There will be a brief introductory address by Sir Knight David J. BRITAIN MOVES TO GUARD TRADE ROUTES TO EAST

(By the Associated Press)

The British government undertook today new efforts to protect Mediterranean trade routes to empire possessions of the Orient.

The general appearance of warlike tension throughout the world and especially the Italian conquest of Albania spurred the British action.

London informants said Prime Minister Chamberlain would announce before the house of commons Thursday that Britain would consider as an "unfriendly act" any aggression in the eastern Mediterranean, and particularly aggression against Greece and Turkey.

The French government decided Premier Daladier also would make a declaration on France's position Thursday at almost the same time Chamberlain is expected to be speaking in London. The Paris cabinet gave final formal approval to drastic decrees for strengthening national defense — decrees which already were being put into operation.

In London it was expected that Britain would reserve the right to decide what constituted aggression — a decision which, in the case of the pledge to fight for Polish independence, was left to Poland.

A reason for the reservation, London informants said, was that Chamberlain hoped Italy would guarantee that, having taken Albania, the Mediterranean status quo would be kept. The Italian government Tuesday sent a note of assurance to Greece.

Britain hoped to make the pledge to Greece and Turkey the basis of a wider Balkan alliance to be brought into the British-French-Polish entente which was organized hastily after Germany broke up Czechoslovakia last month.

The purpose was to halt aggression.

The armies of the powers, meanwhile, were brought to new strength — that of Italy to perhaps 1,200,000 men, that of France to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 men.

The French Mediterranean fleet was on a secret cruise. The British Mediterranean fleet kept watch at Malta, near Italian Sicily and Greek Corfu.

An assembly met in Tirana, meanwhile, to set up a fascist regime in Albania whence King Zog fled after the Italian military occupation. Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano arrived by airplane in Tirana to represent Il Duce at the assembly meeting.

The National park service will show slides and motion pictures, some of them in color, of the Gettysburg battlefield while dogwood and redbud are in bloom and of the 75th anniversary celebration here last summer. The motion pictures will include a reel of sound pictures never shown before locally.

Jerry and Tressie, radio entertainers who broadcast from York and Frederick stations, will entertain with special songs and there will be speeches by Perry W. 20-TON TRUCK LANDS IN CREEK; DRIVER UNHURT; $1,000 DAMAGE

The swollen waters of Bermudian creek, between Heidlersburg and York Springs, surrounded this morning a 20-ton truck tractor and trailer which ran off the Gettysburg-Harrisburg highway Tuesday evening and dropped into the creek, badly damaging the huge vehicle although the driver escaped miraculously with a scratch.

Several cranes were to be taken to the scene later today in an attempt to return the truck and trailer to the roadway. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at about $1,000, although the extent of the damage cannot be determined until the wreckage is pulled from the muddy waters of the creek.

Daniel Funk, 35, Cleona, Lebanon county, driver of the southbound truck, told Officers Russell Fischer and D. Harris, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, who investigated, that he believed the right front wheel of the truck had locked, causing the truck to veer off the right side of the road.

After running along the side of the road for about 120 feet the truck dropped over a 10-foot bank and plunged into the waters of the creek, swollen by Tuesday's rains which continued to fall at the time of the accident.

After the truck reached the creek it swerved to the right and came to rest on a small mid-stream island while the big trailer broke loose, struck a section of the bridge wall and then toppled over against the bridge.

The truck was badly damaged. The cab was shifted and the steering wheel jammed up into an upper corner of the cab without striking the driver. Funk clambered out of the cab, onto its top and from there leaped to the top of the tilted trailer and then jumped to the bridge. He telephoned his employer, Harry Myers, at Cleona, and then returned by the same route to the truck cab where Officers Harris and Fischer found him asleep when they arrived at the scene shortly after midnight. The accident occurred about 9 o'clock, but it was midnight before any report of the mishap reached the substation here.

Although they were able to see Funk lying in the cab, they could not arouse him to determine whether he was hurt, until they tossed pebbles against the cab and prepared to wade across 15 feet of swift water to the truck.

The officers could not reach the cab because of the rising water, but with the aid of their flashlights and one Funk carried, the driver was helped to the safety of the bridge.

Funk told the police he had been driving about 30 to 35 miles an hour when the accident occurred. He denied he had dozed at the wheel. The heavy truck pushed over several six-inch trees in its plunge down the creek bank.

The driver was enroute to the south for a load of peanuts when the mishap occurred. His truck was empty.

BILL EXTENDS F.H.A. POWERS FOR TWO YEARS

Washington, April 12 (AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate today a bill extending for two years the powers of the federal housing administration and raising from $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 the amount of mortgages it may insure.

The F.H.A., seeking to stimulate the flow of money into the construction industry and provide low cost home financing, insured loans by private institutions for home building and renovation. Unless congress continues its powers, they expire on June 30.

Before passing the bill on a voice vote, the house accepted an amendment by Representative Cochran (D-Mo) designed to prevent what he said was the writing up of land values by promoters of large apartment projects.

The senate finance committee, meanwhile, gave speedy approval to an increase from $49,000,000 to $80,000,000 in authorized federal expenditures to pay state administrative costs for unemployment compensation.

The senate committee made no changes in an amendment to the social security act passed by the house Monday.

MOVIE BAD MEN IN HERO ROLES

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—It's disconcerting, but in tune with these uncertain times, that gangsters should be patriots and patriots should be gangsters.

In Hollywood today any actor stands a fair chance of being one or the other, because machine-gunning and flag-waving are the town's principal screen concerns of the moment.

These unrelated activities come to the fore in opposing "cycles," and the outcome may be a complete reshuffling of the local "type" system.

The noblest gangster of them all is Edward G. Robinson, or "Little Caesar." And what's he doing now? He's playing a hard-hitting G-Man, the fellow who nabs a lot of Nazi spies in that "Confessions of———" movie. This, of course, comes under the flag-waving classification.

And Paul Muni. "Scarface" brought him back to pictures, so he could stay and make uplifters like "Pasteur" and "Zola" and most recently the flag-waving epic of democracy, "Juarez." After a detour or dalliance in musical lanes with "Beethoven," the ex-gangster will be waving the banner again as "The Bishop Who Walked with God," story of the German cleric who defied A. Hitler. (And we have no assurance that "Beethoven" somehow will not find an excuse to hoist the colors.)

* * *

Spencer Tracy. "Quick Millions." A gangster de luxe before "Scarface." A priest in "Boys Town," and a hero in "Stanley and Livingstone," and soon to be a great American hero—Thomas A. Edison—on the screen.

James Cagney. Our old friend the "Public Enemy." Detoured long from the paths of crime, but happily back again—at least convicted and a prisoner—in "Each Dawn I Die." And what's next? The one-time gangster will be playing the life of John Paul Jones, great American naval hero!

You can cherish hopes for Humphrey Bogart's regeneration. Tough guy, Bogart, from 'way back. Killer in "The Petrified Forest," temporary reformation in "Crime School," interesting bit in "Dark Victory" and now—at last—a romantic role in "The Old Maid." But don't expect it to last. W. R. Burnett, the author of "Little Caesar," is in town writing "John Dillinger, Outlaw." And who's to play it? Mr. Bogart, of course.

* * *

Wallace Beery. Hardened one-time inmate of "The Big House." Off-and-on character. In cahoots with the slave-runners in "Stand Up and Fight"—but now on the side of the law till it hurts in "Sergeant Madden."

Tyrone Power. From ragtime to train robbery. "Jesse James" (undoubtedly inspiration for the more modern saga of Dillinger) gives way to "Rose of Washington Square," not a flag-waver essentially but still having its exalted moments as a cavalcade of American show business.

Frederic March. Yesterday's "Buccaneer"—the pirate Lafitte—goes patriotic on stage and screen in "The American Way."

One never knows—to quote the immortal Garbo lines—what time will bring, does one?

PLANS FOR KING'S VISIT UNALTERED

London, April 12 (AP) — A Buckingham palace official said today that no changes had been made or were immediately contemplated in the present plans for the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the United States and Canada next month.

The admiralty said "we have heard nothing" of reports that the trip might be made aboard a Canadian liner so that the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Republic would be available for active service in Europe.

Previously the admiralty disclosed that plans were altered for the royal apartments aboard the Republic so that four anti-aircraft guns need not be removed.

HEATING SYSTEM CONTROL PROVIDES EVEN COMFORT

Few units of mechanical or convenience equipment that go into the home contribute more to ease of living than automatic heating-system control, which provides "clock-around" Winter comfort.

Thermostat heat controls, which eliminate frequent trips to basement or utility room, govern the operation of burners so that the desired temperature can be obtained by a simple dial in the living room. Regardless of outside weather, a never-varying temperature can be automatically provided for the entire home.

BULGARIA BANS ITS NAZI PARTY

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 12 (AP).—Bulgaria, wooed by Britain and France to enlist in the anti-aggression chain in southeastern Europe, today took steps to stamp out the German-supported nazi party for plotting to change the form of government.

The party, known as ratnizi and said to have 100,000 members, was ordered dissolved Tuesday night by the ministry of the interior, and all civil servants who were members were warned to discontinue their activities with the organization.

The nazis had made several demonstrations throughout the Easter holidays, distributing leaflets denouncing the premier and Jews.

The demonstrators demanded that Bulgaria undertake an energetic campaign to recover the provinces of Macedonia and Thrace from Greece and Dobruja from Rumania.

It was announced that state employes belonging to ratnizi would be dismissed. The government rejected appeals for the liberation of Prof. Assen Katarjieff, the party "fuehrer" who was in police custody.

There were about 300 meat market employes in attendance at each meeting.

Writer Sees Hitler Spreading Nazi Propaganda in Silesia

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York, April 12—Over in Polish Silesia—former German territory which bulges with riches in the shape of vast coal fields—there has appeared a symptom that means Fuehrer Hitler has a yearning for that particular zone.

That isn't to say he intends to use force to get it—for there is widespread belief among observers that he means to depend on negotiations. Still he wants it.

This symptom always signals a big totalitarian wish. This wish-rash is just as sure to appear as that a parade will precede the circus, or that Uncle Joshua's corns will ache before a storm. In the present instance it is this:

A German radio station has begun broadcasting appeals to the Germans in Silesia to compile lists of Poles who "persecute" them.

Such lists should include the names of Poles who remove from German legs the white stockings which are one of the badges of nazidom's followers in Poland.

Of course, we didn't need this development to tell us Herr Hitler wants Silesia, for he already had made that quite clear. Still it is interesting, because it follows a fixed rule.

Charges of persecution have entered into virtually every territorial move made by the three great totalitarian states—Germany, Italy and Japan—going clear back to the Japanese occupation of Manchuoukuo in 1931.

Japan invaded Manchuria and established the new state of Manchoukuo on the grounds that the people were oppressed by the Chinese to the south, and were begging for aid to secure their independence.

Later the Japanese invaded China for the avowed purpose of ridding the communist influences which were said to be oppressing and working against Japan.

Allegations that the Czecho-Slovak government was oppressing the Sudeten Germans brought about the annexation of Sudetenland by Hitler.

More recently Slovakia and Ruthenia were reported to have begged the nazi chief to help them obtain their independence from Praha, whereupon he cracked up what was left of Czechoslovakia.

Mussolini took over Albania the other day with the announcement that King Zog was a tyrant and that the people were crying for deliverance.

Now we have the Silesian difficulties, and similar charges as regards the so-called Polish Corridor, running up to Danzig.

Life Brightens for Tumor Baby

Taken to New York by airplane three weeks ago after Pittsburgh physicians had abandoned hope to save his life, two-year-old Harold Holt, Jr., was given deep X-ray therapy treatment at a New Rochelle, New York, hospital for a malignant tumor growth in his stomach from which he lay at point of death. The little boy, who comes from Monongahela, Pa., improved so much due to the treatments that he recently went shopping in New Rochelle for a new Easter outfit. Here he is posing in his new outfit as his nurse and a salesman look on.

MARKET GAINS ARE GENERAL

New York, April 12 (AP)—The stock market recouped today some of its wide losses of the past month.

Gains ranging to more than three points were general around midday. The rally stalled, however, after a snappy upturn in early dealings and trading diminished.

The rise seemed to get its main impetus from a strong technical condition resulting from the preceding heavy liquidation of margin accounts and by investors who had been unnerved by the European crisis.

BEWARE OF THE SPACE-TAKERS IN YOUR GARDEN

(By the Associated Press)

Before you plant vegetables in your backyard this spring, decide whether you're doing it to save money, to build your health, or for fun.

Knowing the reason for your garden will help you plan the kind of vegetable plot you want.

The utility gardener, out to save money, grows things he likes to eat and picks crops with high food value—like beans, peas, tomatoes, turnips, carrots and beets. He probably won't plant cucumbers, muskmelons, and watermelons because they take lots of ground. Besides, department of agriculture experts don't rate them high in food value. (But the person who's gardening for fun may want to try them.-

Kohlrabi is a good utility garden crop. So are onions. And you can grow lots of tomatoes per square foot of garden space if you stake them up.

Greens For Health

The person looking out for his health may take up gardening just for the exercise and the fresh air. In that case, he'll get results no matter what he plants. Or he may want to assure himself of a plentiful supply of greens.

Spinach, mustard and swiss chard can be grown in most parts of the U. S. Hot summers are hard on lettuce, however, as on peas and turnips. Romaine and Cos lettuce are more resistant to heat.

Health gardeners like kale and broccoli, too.

If you're gardening just for fun you'll get a kick out of collector's items and novelties. Seed catalogues are full of unusual varieties.

Many Novelty Vegetables

You might try gourds. You can get scores of shapes and color combinations. And there are hundreds of kinds of beans with seeds in red, white, black, green, purple, yellow and other colors. Pods are of different sizes and color patterns.

Whatever your big idea in gardening, you will want to adapt your garden to your soil and climate.

Stringless beans, for example, require successive plantings to keep a supply.

Early and late varieties solve the problem in some vegetables, peas for example. You can also plant early, medium, and late varieties in cabbage, tomatoes and other vegetables.

No matter what kind of a garden you plant it will probably be fun and you're a cinch to get exercise.

SAYS KANSAS CITY POLICE ARE WORST

Jefferson City, Mo., April 12 (AP)—A federal immigration officer, with experience across the nation, told the house judiciary committee Tuesday night "the Kansas City Police department is the worst metropolitan force I've ever come in contact with."

The agent, Walter H. Bliss, recited his findings as a witness before the committee to urge adoption of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's effort to shift Kansas City's police from local to state control.

OUTDO GOLDFISH GULPERS

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 12 (AP)—To members of the Colorado college dog club, goldfish gulpers are a little bit on the dainty side.

Biology students qualify for dog club membership by biting off the head of a four-and-a-half-inch water dog or salamander. Prof. R. J. Gilmore, biology professor, said the 15-year-old club's membership never has fallen below 50.

STATE GRANTED $945,020 FOR AGED AND CHILDREN

BLIZZARD HITS NORTHERN OHIO

folk, Virginia, reporting 48; Wilmington, Delaware, 60; Jacksonville, Florida, 66, and Miami, 72.

Chicago's minimum of 21 at 5 a. m., was seven degrees below the previous record for April 12, recorded in 1900.

Since Tuesday there has been snow in Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, flurries in Chicago and northern Illinois and in the other Great Lakes states.

A 32-mile northwest wind bore down on the city off Lake Erie. An inch of swirling snow soon covered the ground.

Street car, bus and private motor traffic was slowed down as main traffic arteries acquired a glaze of ice. The Cleveland Railway company spread 60 tons of salt along its street car and bus routes.

Citizens of the Ohio metropolis were disgruntled but not surprised. April snows are not unusual here—last year, on April 6, the city had 7.4 inches, the heaviest fall of the winter.

The victors pushed over a trio of runs in each the second and third innings to clinch victory, Thomas held Fairfield to four hits and whiffed eight batsmen. The game was halted in the seventh inning due to rain.

Rain washed out the Biglerville-Littlestown and East Berlin-New Oxford tilts. Big'erville held a 7-2 lead over Littlestown when rain descended to halt the game in the fourth inning.

Joan Crawford Gets Divorce From Franchot Tone

Los Angeles, April 12 (AP) — Now that Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone are divorced, they expect to see each other "from time to time" and may even be cast together in pictures.

"I hope I am intelligent enough to be friendly with Mr. Tone, even though we can't be married," was the way the glamorous actress phrased it.

She expressed her view in answer to Superior Judge Benjamin Scheinman, who two weeks ago refused her a decree by deposition but granted it Tuesday when she made a personal appearance.

The jurist asked why, the night before she sought "long distance" dissolution of the marriage, she and her actor-husband had danced merrily together in a New York night club.

"Leaders of the motion picture industry have voluntarily subscribed to a code for the purpose of raising the standing of individual morality, promoting ethical conduct and fostering good will between racial and religious groups," commented Judge Scheinman.

"I think it would be unfortunate, if, in the matter of a divorce and marriage, the public was led to believe by the conduct of individuals in pictures that these are matters that can be taken lightly."

Miss Crawford replied she expected to see Tone occasionally and "I could not go around not speaking to him."

Tone, she testified, "said he thought his marriage was a mistake, that he was not the marrying kind and wanted his freedom."

Tone and Miss Crawford were married in 1935 and separated last July 20.

Parkers May Take Appeal to High Court

Philadelphia, April 12 (AP).—Counsel for Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis, Jr., was uncertain today whether an appeal from their conviction on charges of conspiracy to abduct Paul H. Wendel and wring from him a confession to the Lindbergh kidnaping would be carried to the United States Supreme court.

The United States circuit court of appeals Tuesday upheld the conviction and refused a new trial.

James Mercer Davis, attorney for the erstwhile chief of Burlington county, New Jersey, detectives, and his son, said he would come to Philadelphia today to obtain a copy of the appellate court's opinion and study it before deciding what further moves, if any, would be made to save his clients from imprisonment.

Unless recourse is taken to the Supreme court, the Parkers, who have been free in bail at their Mount Holly, New Jersey, home since their conviction at Newark in June, 1937, would be taken to the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg.

The elder Parker was sentenced to six years and his son, to three years.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Southpaw Bob Weiland appears to be the choice of Manager Ray Blades to pitch the St. Louis Cardinals' opening game against the Pirates at Pittsburgh next Tuesday. If he starts and is successful, Blades figures to continue with lefties Clyde Shoun and Tom Sunkel against the Bucs, then toss in right-handers Lon Warneke and Curt Davis against their old team, the Cubs, when the Cards get home.

Roanoke, Va.—Although his hurling under Tuesday's poor conditions left something to be desired, Lefty Grove is in mid-season glaring form. The veteran Boston portsider pitched one of his toughest looks at Ted Williams when the rookie failed to bend over for a single to him and it rolled by for a three-bagger. And he glared again at manager Joe Cronin when the boss missed a grounder.

Washington—The first major league club to reach home grounds, the Washington Senators wind up their spring series with the Boston Bees today and Thursday. Buck Harris, Washington manager, is hopeful that getting back home will help some of his ailing players get in shape for the season's opener next Monday. The Bees, beaten in five or six games, hoped hurlers Bill Posedel and John Lanning would proposed a couple of victories.

Birmingham, Ala.—Manager Doc Prothro forsees "plenty of misery" for his Phillies unless the hurlers round into shape. "Only Claude Passeau is ready to face major league opposition," Prothro moaned, adding that he couldn't explain why Al Hollingsworth and Hugh Mulcahy have failed to show their best form.

Tarboro, N. C.—They must be gluttons for punishment. The citizens of Tarboro turned out to fete Connie Mack at a banquet Tuesday night after seeing his Athletics lose a 9-8 slugfest to the Williamsport, Pa., eastern leaguers. Roy Parmelee proved a better hitter than a pitcher, collecting a double and triple before he was driven to the showers.

SLEEPY TIME TALK

Peoria, Ill. — Mrs. Fred Post awoke when she heard someone walking around on the first floor. "Who's there?" she called. "It's me," was the reply. She concluded it was a member of the family getting home late. Later she discovered the house had been ransacked and $12 was missing.

UNSEASONABLE LEGISLATION

North Chicago, Ill. — The city council went to work on a hot weather subject on one of the coldest spring nights of the year. While temperatures and snow fell and the wind howled, the councilmen voted to prohibit fireworks in the city on July 4.

Here is a new kind of meat ball: Make meat cakes the usual way and then insert inch cubes of bread soaked in chili sauce. Cover and bake or brown the meat cakes on top the stove. The sauce flavors the meat from the inside.

F.D.R. TO SIGN RELIEF BILL DESPITE CUT

Washington, April 12 (AP)—A $100,000,000 emergency relief bill was on its way to the White House today assured of presidential approval, although it is $50,000,000 less than Mr. Roosevelt requested.

The senate passed the measure without dissent Tuesday night after rejecting, 49 to 28, an amendment by Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) to increase the sum by $50,000,000.

The fight over Pepper's proposal brought a sharp split in administration ranks. Democratic leader Barkley supported the $100,000,000 allocation, and told the senate he had agreed on that figure with a group of administration followers, economy-minded democrats, and republicans.

If he lacked courage to bear his share of responsibility for the understanding, Barkley said, senate democrats should choose another leader.

"I think my record of the last six years shows that I'm not frightened at spending," the Kentuckian shouted to an attentive chamber. "If I had it in my power, I would order that $150,000,000 be appropriated."

But, Brakley continued, he had information that the house, which already had approved the $100,000,000 fund, would not accept an increase.

Barkley told the chamber that although the amount was "unsatisfactory" to the President, he was authorized to announce that Mr. Roosevelt would sign the $100,000,000 bill.

Mr. Roosevelt re-affirmed his desire for a $150,000,000 appropriation in a letter to Pepper shortly before the vote. The President said it was a matter of arithmetic that between 300,000 and 400,000 fewer W.P.A. jobs would be provided if $100,000,000 was appropriated.

The money voted Tuesday night brings to $2,163,000,000 the relief funds which congress has appropriated for the year ending next June 30.

Barkley disclosed that the President shortly would ask congress for a $1,500,000,000 W.P.A. appropriation for the year beginning July 1.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the house committee investigating the W.P.A. would turn its spotlight first on the workers' alliance.

Informed legislators said the committee had subpoenaed David Lasser, head of the relief workers' organization, to testify next Monday on its operations and scope.

ADVICE AND PRACTICE

One day, not feeling over-well,
I asked a doctor wise to tell
What drug or tincture would restore
The health that I had known before.
"Slow down, my boy!" was what he said,
"Or very shortly you'll lie dead!"

"Neither man's body nor his mind
Was for this modern pace designed;
The Lord intended and desired
A man to rest when he grew tired,
That he might sometimes stop and snooze,
He gave man lots of time to lose.

"That's all! Henceforth don't overdo!
And see me in a week or two.
I'm sorry. I've no time to stay,
But I'm obliged to rush away.
The car is at the door for me.
I've seven more patients I must see.

"Remember—" as he grabbed his hat,
"Eat plainer food—not too much fat!
And take it easy! I must run.
I'll never get my calling done!
Although I'm tired as I can be,
I've seven more patients still to see!"

POLICE AND FIREMEN THREATEN TO STRIKE

Larksville, Pa., April 12 (AP)—This anthracite borough's tiny police and fire-fighting forces reported for wrok today after threatening temporarily to strike for unpaid wages and in protest against prospective salary reductions or dismissals.

Police Chief Joseph Mock said a decision to continue on duty was reached Tuesday night at a meeting with Burgess Andrew Suppon. Policemen and fire truck drivers are still determined to strike, he said, if their demands are not met soon.

Mock said he and his force of six patrolmen had not been paid since November.

Cattle importations from Mexico through the four Texas border ports of entry at Hidalgo, Laredo Eagle Pass and Del Rio totaled 42,853 head in 1938 compared with 23,745 head in 1937.

Today's Talk

—By George Matthew Adams—

WITH — OR WITHOUT

HONOLULU, T. H. — I can never forget the thrill experienced when I first picked and ate an orange from the tree in Florida, or when I first took from its tree a ripe fig in California. In both instances it was like shaking hands with a famous person, long known from reading or reputation.

Well, hereafter, when I take my morning coffee and am asked: "With — or without?" I will say: "With, please!" Meaning, of course, with Sugar, for now I have seen the cane grow and the Sugar produced in the mill. It takes 18 long, painstaking months of growth and care to mature Sugar cane ready for the refinery. I visited one of the largest Hawaiian plantations and was shown through its great refinery, following each process until the perfect cubes of sugar (nature's contribution) came out and were bagged to be sent to the four corners of the earth.

Here in Hawaii, Sugar is King. And, I might add, Pineapple is Queen! The 1937 value of Sugar shipments from these islands was nearly $63,000,000, and of Pineapples, nearly $43,000,000. Of juice alone, nearly $17,000,000. In lesser amounts other tropical products such as Coffee and Dairy ones, are exported. The Papaya is unusually delicious here, and beautiful groves are seen for miles along the roadside, as you drive through the valley. And I am told to watch out for the Hawaiian potato now budding into fame!

Leaving Waikiki beach, so famous throughout the world, you take a car and motor past a huge Pineapple plant, with the biggest pineapple in the world atop, measuring 64 ft. high and 24 ft. in diameter. It's full of water, however! In the distance the great airport of Pearl Harbor is seen, as well as the noted Schofield Army Barracks. For miles now you see the sugar cane growing in all its stages. Never have I seen such an elaborate and systematized business proposition in connection with agriculture. The workers, of necessity, have their homes on the plantations; each plantaton has its own private schools, churches amusement and civic centres, free hospital and medical service, athletic fields and gymnasiums. I went into many of the homes, so beautifully located, with their own flowers and fruit trees, and was impressed with the contrast to so many of the homes of workers on the mainland. Here workers show every evidence of being happy.

As I have written, from January to January, it is just one long Summer day in Hawaii! Imagine a temperature of around 74 degrees throughout the year!

Water, however, has to be brought for miles from the mountains to these valleys, for the plantations, for water is the one essential in the growing of Sugar cane. Huge artesian wells also pump great streams of water into the land. It takes 2,085 tons of water for each ton of Sugar produced In the neighborhood of $40,000,000 has been spent by the plantations in irrigation equipment alone.

On your way back to town you note the Territorial flower, the Hibiscus, for miles along the way, lining the fields of Sugar cane, Pineapples, and Papayas. It is a sight to bury in your memory — and take home with you!

Old Home Week Murder

—BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR—

The Characters

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.

J. Arthur Brinley, pompus selectman of Billingsgate.

Yesterday: Asey finds Kay beaten up by an unknown assailant in the woods. He trails the fellow and is shot at. Asey shoots back.

Worse Than A Greased Pig

Chapter 33

SOMEWHERE away off in the distance, three shots replied to his. Asey nodded. That was Lane, or some one of his men, and they would be heartily welcome.

As the noise of the shots died out, the fellow began to run, apparently realizing that Asey was having reinforcements. Asey went after him.

In the chase that followed, he began to understand how Zeb Chase had felt the previous Saturday night.

No matter how grimly he continued, or how many times he tried to raise his speed, the man was always ahead, and just far enough ahead that Asey actually never once saw him. Once he took a pot shot, but a pot shot had no effect on that speeding, twisting, dodging human.

"If," Asey thought, "the man is human!"

By degrees they circled around to where the ground sloped to the pond and the surrounding marshes.

When they reached the beginning of the marsh land, Asey slowed up.

He had no knowledge of this particular spot, but he knew enough about these treacherous muddy marshes in general to be very wary. In his childhood the marshes near his home had been to wandering cattle what the automobile later became to wandering dogs. A series of pictures flashed through his mind—the time his father's best mare had gone down in a mud hole over by Holbrook's, and the hastily improvised blocks and tackles, and the lanterns flickering, and finally his uncle borrowing a shotgun from Nate Holbrook.

The strange laugh floated out ahead of him, but Asey stood still. Not even on the chance of catching a murderer would he let himself be maneuvered toward that ground.

Instead he sat down and loaded his forty-five.

According to his calculations, he was on the edge of the swampy land east of the pond, and not over three hundred yards from the ice house where he had been with Kay and Brinley and the soprano earlier in the day.

Somewhere, this fellow must have a car. There were two approaches to the pond, the short narrow lane which he and Kay had used, and the road where Brinley had left his machine. The latter road was by far the better, but it was also farther from the pond and harder to reach in a hurry. But it seemed to Asey that if he were in this fellow's shoes, he would prefer having a greater distance to cover in an emergency to the chance of being bottled up in that narrow path. It was about three to one that the car was parked on the east road.

Asey decided to abandon the chase and investigate the line of retreat. Trying to catch this fellow was on a par with trying to catch a greased pig at the old Barnstable fairs, the principal difference being that the pig at least was visible.

After three unsuccessful attempts, he finally reached the east road.

A parked car loomed out of the fog directly ahead of him, and the sight nearly made him whoop.

He waited in the bushes, flashlight in one hand, forty-five in the other. This business was going to come to a finish, right then and there.

At last the man came, sliding out of the underbrush so quietly that Asey almost missed him.

The fellow was panting, Asey noted with pleasure. His breath came in short quick gasps and he walked as though he were utterly exhausted. Asey knew how those feet felt. His felt exactly the same way.

'Flabbergasted'

The man was abreast of him.

Asey's light flashed into his face and the forty-five ground above the fellow's belt buckle.

"My golly! So it's you is it, J. Arthur? Brother Brinley, the old—say, it is you, isn't it?"

J. Arthur was shaking from head to foot.

"It's me—who—are—is it Asey?"

"Old Mayo," Asey said. "Nurmi Mayo. You turn around. That's it. Keep on reaching. That's right, J. Arthur. You don't mind if I admit to bein' flabbergasted, do you? I'd never suspected it in a hundred years. Feel this gun borin' into your back? You do? Well, J. Arthur, you behave, or it'll go off, with r'sults that'll be a rev'lation to you."

With the flashlight propped between his jacket buttonholes, Asey's free left hand patted Brinley's pockets.

"Not in a shoulder holster—my, my, what'd you do with your pop gun an' silencer?" Asey asked. "Dropped 'em into the pond, did you? Or what?"

"What do you mean? I—"

"Brinley," Asey said, "there's no two-year-old in the world who wouldn't tell you this is not the time to bluster. Pick up both feet, laddie, an' march along the road. We ain't taking to the bush no more tonight. That's it. Just you hep right along. I'm behind you. March."

Brinley marched.

"Can't we," he said breathlessly after a minute or two, "go in my car? That's my car, there—"

"I just couldn't trust myself to take rides with you, J. Arthur. Not after tonight. I somehow feel I mightn't get a chance to walk home. I might just be tossed out. No, I think we'll walk it."

Before they reached the main road, Brinley stopped short.

"Carry on, feller," Asey said.

"It's my corns," Brinley said. "Really, I would like to take my shoes off. They hurt. And do I have to go along the main road with my arms up like this? I'd hate to have anyone see me—and besides, I don't understand what this is all about, anyway! What is this all about?"

"The trouble with people like you," Asey said, "is that other people don't take 'em serious until it's too late. When you get a comb'nation of a henpecked husband, an' a Mister Milquetoast, who tries to be pompous an' blustery, it's sort of misleadin'. You don't expect—whoa—you don't turn around, J. Arthur, you—"

"Save Your Breath"

"I will so turn around!" Brinley said. "What I do is my business, and you have no right to interfere!"

"You might just as well save your breath," Asey said, "an' march along—hey, who's that?"

Someone was calling his name.

"Asey, Asey Mayo! Where are you?"

Asey bellowed back, and shortly Hamilton appeared from the woods.

"You got him! Who—Brinley? Well, Well."

"He's tryin'," Asey said, "to be innocenter than a new born lamb. I hand it to him."

"What went on?"

"I don't know about the first part of it," Asey said. "But he's been given' me a workout I won't forget in years. Had a little slencer arrangement, an' used it lavish. Tried to bog me, too, but I r'fused to be bogged. How's Kay? You seen her?"

"I guess she's all right. She was up at the house, and Cummings was looking after her. Had a scalp wound. Just a scratch, but it bled a lot. I din't wait to hear her story. I started out for you. Lane's out, too, and a bunch of his boys."

"Did you get Prettyman off all right?" Asey asked.

Hamilton laughed. "That guy is a pip, Asey. He got on the train and walked smack up to Burley and said, 'Let's be friends, it's so much easier that way.' They got a wire from Burley before I left Boston. He said they were getting along swell. He said—hey, what's the matter, Brinley? Get going!"

J. Arthur turned around.

"I will not," he announced firmly, "move one more step until I have taken my shoes off, and I will not move very many steps after that! I tell you, my feet hurt!"

"With Hamilton here to help cope with you," Asey said, "I can afford to be gen'rous. Go ahead."

"Watch out," Hamilton warned. "Wait, Brinley. I had a guy nearly kill me once, taking a stone out of his shoe. Little gadget in his shoe fired a slug. I'll take the shoes off for you. Stick up a foot."

Despite Brinley's protests that he was perfectly able to remove his own shoes, Hamilton pulled them off.

"Okay," he said. "And what fancy shoes you wear—"

"Say," Asey interrupted, "I got a—let me see them shoes, Hamilton. I didn't think to—"

They were white buckskin oxfords with leather soles.

"Put in our light an' watch him, Ham," Asey said. "I want to look into these things."

They were not just white buckskin shoes, they were the whitest buckskin shoes Asey had ever seen. There wasn't a scratch or a mark or a smudge on them. They were brand new.

Asey looked down at his own rubber-soled brown leather shoes. Briars and blackberry vines had scarred the leather in two dozen places. There were broken pine needles stuck in the lacings. The toes were wet. Lumps of dirt and mud from the lowlands showed on the toe and along the side.

He raised one foot. A mixture of leaves and dirt was packed solidly in the space between the low heel and the instep.

And J. Arthur's buckskin shoes were white, and the leather sole was barely damp.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores. 10¢ and 25¢.

TAX PROGRAM IS DELAYED IN ASSEMBLY

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—Administration leaders deferred their tax program today until they could determine the extent of a Dauphin court decision invalidating the franchise tax on foreign corporations.

Moves to meet the "new crisis" in Pennsylvania's financial situation will be held back, they decided at a conference Tuesday night, until President Judge William M. Hargest presents a formal opinion explaining the decision he announced last week.

Without waiting for the opinion, Governor James, thrown off stride in his efforts to keep the commonwealth's expenses in line with its income, directed the case be appealed to the state Supreme court.

Bills to re-enact Earle administration "emergency" levies, expected to produce $163,000,000 in the next two years, have passed the house and now are held in the senate finance committee.

Senator G. Mason Owlett, republican floor leader, and chairman of the committee, said his group hoped to meet Thursday with the house ways and means committee and discuss the next action.

"We can't do anything definite until we find out what the court's opinion really said," Owlett explained. "So far, all we know is that the franchise levy was invalidated. For all we know the ruling might only apply to taxes collected or levied against the corporation which brought the action."

Senator Franklin Spencer Edmonds (R.-Montgomery), who invited Owlett and others to Tuesday night's conference on behalf of the state bar association's taxation committee, said afterward that other tax measures were discussed "only generally."

Among these were proposals for levies on incomes and amusements now held in reserve in the house, and re-enactment of the tax on "foreign" corporations' capital stock.

The latter was replaced by the franchise tax in 1935. Edmonds said it might be revived with modification, and estimated such a levy might bring in four or five million dollars a year. The franchise tax produced about $7,000,000 annually.

Edmonds said the conferees also three man revenue commission in lace of the Department of Revenue, which has been headed by eight different men within its nine-year existence; and to "make business taxes a little fairer in their administration."

He reported James F. Torrance, republican state chairman, "spoke on an economy note but had nothing to say about new taxes."

The tax conference in a downtown hotel followed prolonged sessions of the house and senate.

Two debates, over alien registration and Governor James' plan to set up a Department of Commerce, engaged the house for about four hours.

A democratic filibuster against a senate-approved measure to require aliens to register with the Department of Labor and Industry and carry certificates at all times succeeded in forcing the measure back into committee.

Some republicans had kept leaders from putting the Commerce department issue to a vote for days, because of patronage disputes and objections to using motor fund money to run the proposed agency. Enough relented, however, to push the two companion measures through by comfortable majorities and send them to the senate.

The house later gave final reading to bills which would require state licensing and regulation of tourist camps, and require charitable, benevolent and religious organizations soliciting funds from the public to publish annual financial statements. Both measures went to the senate.

Senate and house committees released two similar anti-fireworks bills. They would permit public and private displays of fireworks if properly licensed and supervised by competent professional operators. Similar legislation fell at the 1938 special session.

Whitney Starts His Second Year In Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., April 12 (AP)—Apparently adjusted to a routine strange to his background, Richard Whitney, fallen financier, started today his second year in Sing Sing prison.

The one-time head of the New York Stock Exchange whose brokerage house went to the wall in a spectacular collapse in March, 1938, went quietly about his duties as clerk in the chief keeper's office. Prison officials described him as healthy, cheerful and 16 pounds heavier than when he was admitted.

Whitney, convict 94385, was sentenced from five to 10 years in prison for grand larceny after he pleaded guilty to stealing funds entrusted to him by the New York yacht club and members of his family. His minimum term, under the probation laws, is three years and four months.

Fellow-prisoners who were inclined to regard him as a visiting celebrity at first now take him for granted.

Whitney's job at the moment is to keep the tally count of prisoners five times a day.

Whitney has had few visitors during the year he has been here, several lawyers visited him from time to time when he first came. His brother, George, a J. P. Morgan partner, has visited him twice.

His wife has been a visitor almost every week.

PRESIDENT SAYS NATIONS NEED 'SHOW OF FORCE'

Washington, April 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt's warm indorsement of a declaration that "free nations" of the world should make a deliberate show of strength to prevent war coincided today with evidences of senatorial agreement on temporary neutrality legislation.

Opposing senate forces, which long have disputed whether neutrality legislation attained its end or actually bred foreign troubles, seemed to be almost agreed to stopgap re-enactment of the expiring "cash and carry" clause of the present neutrality act.

Mr. Roosevelt said Tuesday at his press conference that an editorial in the Washington Post was good, clear and honest in saying, among other things, that "nothing less than a show of preponderant force" would impress Italy and Germany in their ambitious efforts to expand.

The editorial, with emphasis on "panicky legislation" designed to keep America isolated, said:

"Most Americans realize today that the sweep of events has now brought Europe to the very verge of war. What is insufficiently realized is the tremendous implications of the impending catastrophe for every citizen of this country."

On the question of how to avert war, the Post said:

"Pressure from the Berlin-Rome axis will not ease until it reaches the point of serious resistance. Then only can a different and honestly conciliatory attitude be expected from the dictators.

"Nothing less than a show of preponderant force will stop them, for force is the only language they understand. But, like less exalted bullies, force is to them a real deterrent."

A direct result of Mr. Roosevelt's endorsement of the "show of force" idea was a complaint from Senator Nye (R.-N.D.) who said it demonstrated "a possible determination on the part of the President not only to join Europe but to encourage Europe to undertake war."

Nye announced he would try to amend the "cash and carry" clause to place all supplies, except arms and ammunition, on this basis. A compromise spirit was shown by Chairman Pittman (D.-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee in saying he would not oppose such an amendment.

Dickinson Dean Named to Liquor Board by James

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP).—The name of Dean Walter Harrison Hitchler of the Dickinson law school was added today to a long list of nominees whose official fate remained dubious because of the attitude of democratic senators.

Governor James Tuesday sent the senate the nomination of Hitchler, a boyhood schoolmate and co-worker at the Nottingham mine near Plymouth years ago, to the liquor control board. The name was referred to the executive nominations committee.

There was no indication when republican leaders would bring up the appointment for confirmation.

Hitchler, 56 and unmarried, would succeed former Chairman Leo Crossen, whose nomination by former Governor Earle was rejected.

He joined the Dickinson faculty in 1906 and became dean in 1930.

STAR REFUSES TO BE BITTER DESPITE LUCK

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Today's song of Unstinted Admiration is dedicated to a little woman who isn't "important" any more.

Unless you were a movie fan eight or nine or ten years ago, you won't even recognize her name. It's Evelyn Brent. Remember?

I saw her walking across the RKO lot the other day, and a lot of other people saw her too, but nobody looked twice. People look twice only at "important" people. Stardust gets in the eyes, and they don't see gameness when it walks by in a plain gray suit and plain hat with its chin high. That was Brent—Betty Brent, as her friends call her.

Ten years ago I drove out to see Betty for the first time. She lived at Malibu then, in a big house right on the sand, a big house where Hollywood trooped in and out, paying homage to success. Brent was "big"—star, wealthy, famous. Big.

One day it ended. She wasn't a star any longer. She was broke. She had thought everything was safe. It wasn't. She had to start all over again, just as if she hadn't had a heart-breakng tough time getting to the top. She went on "personal appearance" tours, she made her own way, she kept her chin up.

* * *

It's not a new story. What makes it different is that Betty Brent, with every human right to be bitter and sour, isn't. She's doing a picture again. She has a better part in "Second Shot" than she's had in years. Dance hall entertainer, tougher than tough, a real "character"—the sort of hard-boiled femme she did so well in "Underworld" and her other hits. It may mean bigger things, it may not.

She's talking today in a little canvas shack of a dressing room on the set. Once she had a room in Star Row, but she herself is no more conscious of surroundings than she was then. A queen doesn't need a palace. . . .

"Bitter?" she laughs. "Why should I be? I'm happier now than I ever was. I'm not sorry for anything that happened. Once I had things, now I haven't—and that's all. It's trite, I know, but the simple things are best.

"The most valuable thing my experience taught me is—I know people now. I don't mean I'm suspicious of people, or distrust them, but I evaluate them more carefully now. I've learned who my real friends are.

* * *

"Funny, she says, "how little it hurt when the crowds dropped away. It happened as soon as I gave up my house and took a little apartment. I was stunned at first, but then I laughed. After all, I'd never been able to do anything for them, unless it was give them a drink and a sandwich. . . .

"And in those days I was forever bothering. When you have things, you bother about them. Now I don't worry. I have my friends—mostly outside pictures—and I read and practice my wood-carving, and I knit. It's very peaceful, and fun. I'm enjoying life again. . . ."

She's smiling, but suddenly she frowns, remembering something.

"There was one thing, and just one, that did hurt," she says. "There was a little girl—a star now—who always seemed to be my friend. Always came around with the others. One evening, in a Derby booth next to hers, I overheard someone ask her why she hadn't been around to see me. She said, 'They tell me never to associate with failures—only with successes' . . . And that REALLY hurt!"

And it must have. Because Betty Brent, thinking of it, is crying. But she laughs through the tears: "Silly of me—after so many years, isn't it? I'm sorry. . . ."

Farm Calendar

Many beekeepers are using package bees from the south to rebuild the strength of weak colonies and to fill new hives, report bee extension specialists.

Controlling Cabbage Maggots

Treating the soil around plants with either corrosive sublimate solution or dry liquid treatments of calomel will check damage from cabbage maggots, say extension entomologists.

Succession Plantings of Vegetables

Gardners wishing to harvest an abundant supply of fresh vegetables from their garden throughout spring, summer and fall and have a supply of winter storage should make a succession of planting, advise extension specialists in vegetable gardening.

Increased Baby Beef Enrollment

Four hundred and twenty-nine boys and girls are enrolled in Pennsylvania 4-H baby beef clubs, report 4-H club leader at Penn State. This is an increase of 134 over last year.

Delayed dormant spray for the control of such insects as tent caterpillars and aphids should be applied to apple trees when the advanced fruit buds are a quarter to half-inch long but still compact, advise extension entomologists.

Docking and Castrating Lambs

Dock lambs before they are 10 days old and castrate buck lambs before they are five or six weeks old, suggest extension livestock specialists. Uncastrated lambs arriving at the terminal markets after July 1 are discounted $1 per hundredweight.

Favors Super-Road Outlets for Coal Regions in State

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP).—Rep. E. Kent Kane (R-McKean), who wants the state to survey possible routes for super-highways from coal fields to lake and ocean ports, said today it might give coal-carrying railroads "something to think about."

"I'm tired of this business of the railroads running to the Interstate Commerce commission every time Pennsylvania tries to get lower frieght rates on coal," declared Kane, chairman of the house committee on mines and mining.

"It seems to me it would be better for them to be carrying coal at a cheaper rate than have their rails and cars rust away for lack of shipments.

"If we started to build these roads we'd show that we can get our coal out cheaper by truck, without the railroads."

Kane proposed a $55,000 appropriation to the Highways department for surveys of three routes: Pottsville to the Delaware river south of Philadelphia, and Hazleton to New York harbor, both suppiying outlets from the anthracite fields, and Washington, Pa., to Lake Erie west of Erie, opening up the bituminous region.

Shutdown of U. S. Coal Industry Is Threatened by Lewis

New York, April 12 (AP)—A complete shutdown of the nation's coal industry was threatened today, with a consequent shortage and price increase.

John L. Lewis, C.I.O. chairman and president of the United Mine Workers, made the threat Tuesday when contract negotiations with Appalachian soft coal operators reached a seeming deadlock.

Underway since March 14 with little apparent progress, the negotiations nevertheless are scheduled to be resumed today.

Prices of soft coal for industrial use already have risen as a result of the shutdown in the Appalachan fields, following the expiration March 31 of the old two-year labor contract, Pittsburgh reports said:

The Appalachian region produces 70 per cent of the nation's soft coal, and its 338,000 miners are idle. Some 150,000 other miners outside the Appalachian field—in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Colorado and other states—are continuing work under special agreements.

DO IT BETTER AND THE WORLD IS YOURS

We confess that we know more about the drug business than anything else. Our greatest endeavors and interests in this pharmacy are directed along one line—prescription compounding. We have concentrated our thoughts, our studies, our energy—all on the one idea of compounding prescriptions in the most efficient manner.

Practice makes perfect. The pharmacist who has filled 25,000 prescriptions is better qualified than one who has dispensed only 1000. What seems difficult to the novice is comparatively easy for the expert. When the expert compounds a prescription, he is applying the knowedge of years to a task that requires, perhaps, a few minutes to execute.

And what little difference the extra cost of employing an expert really is, especially when it goes into the important work of compounding prescrptions. A difference of a few cents may possibly mean the saving of a life—one that is near and dear to you.

U. S. Fleet Holds Maneuvers Off Virginia Coast

Norfolk, Va., April 12 (AP).—The United States fleet churned white the waters of Hampton Roads today as Uncle Sam's war dogs knifed between the Virginia Capes for a 15-day concentration of naval might—the largest in these waters since 1907.

The nation's "first line of defense" entering and leaving Virginia water during the period will total 104 ships carrying more than 46,000 officers and men.

Arrival of the fleet's battle force today brought to 62 the warships already in the roads. A flotilla of destroyers and smaller craft preceded the battle force's battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers through the capes.

Battle force cruisers are the Honolulu, Boise, Milwaukee and Nashville. Battleships, headed by the California, flagship of Admiral F. C. Kalbfus, senior officer of the fleet under Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief, include the Idaho, Mississippi, and New Mexico. The four aircraft carriers are the Enterprise, Yorktown, Ranger and Lexington.

Hampton Roads has not seen such a fleet concentration since 1907 when during the Jamestown exposition there were 140 ships here, including warcraft of every maritime nation on earth.

Says Franchise Tax Violates 2 Constitutions

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP).—Nine reasons were cited today by the Dauphin county court for declaring unconstitutional a five-mill franchise tax on out-of-state corporations operating in Pennsylvania.

The ruling, announced last week cut $33,000,000 from the state's budgeted revenue if it is upheld on appeal and started a new series of conferences by administration leaders over the state's financial situation. Governor James ordered an immediate appeal to the state Supreme court.

President Judge William M. Hargest, in his opinion filed today supporting the court's decision ruled the tax law violated both the state and federal constitutions.

The decision was given in the case of the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation. (The Gettysburg Gas corporation is a subsidiary of the Columbia firm.)

The foreign franchise tax law was enacted by the 1935 legislature of which the house was democratic-controlled and the republicans held a majority in the senate.

Governor James estimated that $21,000,000 may have to be returned to companies who paid the tax if the Dauphin county court decision is upheld. The tax was budgeted to yield $12,000,000 for the two-year period, beginning June 1.

Mental Millstones are Going Out of Style

Too often we have met a person who was content to wear defeat like a millstone 'round his neck. How refreshing it was to see him resolve to use his neck to hold up his chin! Then he saw a failure for what it should be—not a millstone but a milestone on the road to long-range achievement. It's how well he carried on that was all-important. He had looked defeat in the face and no longer feared it. Nor would he let mild success lull him into lazy contentment. He was ready for his full share of the glorious opportunities that America alone can offer him. He went swinging down the highway with the courage of youth—the spirit of America.
